We all want to live the good life. But what does this mean? Are money, fame, and success the keys to the good life? What about family, community, service, education, and spirituality? How will you know when you have "made it"?

This course offers a space for thinking about the most central of questions: What is the good life? And how do we get it? We will examine answers that have been given by philosophical, religious, and cultural traditions around the world. We'll put these answers into dialogue with our own personal stories and learn how to practice what we've learned in our daily lives.
